

Fruth/ Gemini Chair of Signage and Community Planning

The College of Design, Architecture, Art and Planning at the University of Cincinnati announces the Terry Fruth/ Gemini Chair of Signage and Community Planning. The holder will also be designated the Eminent Scholar of Urban/Environmental Design. Housed in the School of Planning, the successful candidate will have a PhD in planning, urban design, or closely related field that is relevant to communication in urban environments with a record of research and productivity commensurate with the level of Associate Professor, or a masters degree in the same fields with exceptional record of research and productivity commensurate with the level of Associate Professor. The responsibilities will include providing leadership to this interface of planning, architecture and design both within the university and in the profession through the study of visual communication and signage-related issues and challenges in the urban environment. Responsibilities also include teaching courses that address the aesthetic, design, policy, legal, social, economic, usability, and/or environmental issues associated with signage and urban communication. The ideal candidate will have a strong interest in one or more of the following areas: planning and regulatory policy regarding communication in urban environments; urban design, aesthetics, and livability; visual communication in built environments; and technology and media.

To apply go to www.jobsatuc.com and search for position (211UC0077).

The University of Cincinnati is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. UC is a smoke-free work environment.